LEDCO.

A circular issued by C. W. Sheppard of Ledco calls attention to the present standing and future advantages of the town as follows:

Ledco, a thriving young town, 20 miles south of Edmonton on the C. & E. line, in the midst of a very productive farming district, although yet in its infancy, is the happy possessor of two large grain elevators, a general store, a hardware store, a grocery store, patent medicine and stationery store, lumber yard and shed, an implement shed, two churches, a school house, post office, R. R. station and several dwellings.

There are at present first-class openings for the following businesses: A general blacksmith and woodworker, another general store, a lively stable, a flour and feed store with crusher in connection, a harness shop, a butcher shop, a doctor with a stock of drugs, etc., in connection.
Leduc hitherto, for reasons both inapplicable and inevitable, has not grown in pace with the surrounding settlement, but time associated with the natural course of events has been instrumental in removing these obstacles, hence the coming season bids fair to be a prosperous one for Leduc. Several buildings of different kinds are now under contemplation by those already here and the town is rapidly growing into prominence by those abroad.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, FEB. 9, 1899.

GREAT SLAVE LAKE.

In view of the certainty that there will be a great deal of prospecting on Great Slave lake next summer a description of the way to get there is in order. But first a little of the reason why people want to go there.

Great Slave lake is a body of water larger than Lake Ontario. It occupies a part of the basin of the Mackenzie river, the waters of which enter the lake from the south under the name of the Great Slave river, and leave it to the north under the name of the Mackenzie. The lake lies crosswise of the course of the river. That is, while the course of the river is from south to north the length of the lake is from east to west. The course of the river is towards the western end, where all northern travel passes. The eastern end is almost unknown, and extends a couple of hundred miles towards and almost into the famous Barren grounds, the home of the musk ox. This eastern extension of the lake lies almost entirely in the far northwesterly extension of the same Laurentian formation in which the Port Arthur, Seine river and Rat Portage silver and gold mines are found. The lake is full of islands and has many bays extending far inland. It therefore gives ideal opportunities for prospecting and for the landing of supplies and material for development work. Although the eastern part of the lake had never been examined by geologists, or even scientifically explored in recent years, and therefore was minerally unknown, it was always supposed to be a mineral bearing region. But as the mineral was only supposed to be copper and lead no attention was paid to it. During the Yukon rush of last year, however, some prospecting parties passing through were attracted by the appearance, and although they were all looking for placer, some of them did not object to a good thing in quartz should they happen upon it. They prospected and found that there was lead and copper, but they also found that gold and silver were mixed with the copper and lead. In what proportion, however, they could not be certain. They took specimens, brought them out, had them assayed and claim to be more satisfied with the results.

Although Great Slave lake has hitherto been considered to be so far away from the conveniences and industrial appliances of civilization that nothing found there would be of any value, that idea was a mistake which arose from lack of consideration. Great Slave lake is essentially accessible to the prospector and also to the miner, let his operations be on ever so large a scale. Indeed that is where the region has its principal advantage, besides the actual existence of mineral.

From the end of the railway at Edmonton to the navigable waters of the Mackenzie at Athabasca Landing is 96 miles over a good wagon or sleigh road. The rate of freight over this piece of road is from three-quarters of a cent to a cent a pound, with ample means of conveyance.

From Athabasca Landing to Great Slave lake the distance is roughly 750 miles, divided by two sets of rapids into three stretches of down stream navigation on the Athabasca and Great Slave rivers, really the upper part of the main stream of the Mackenzie. These three navigable stretches are suitable for steamboat navigation, and there are only five portages in all, the total portaging distance being less than one and three quarters miles. Boats and loads are taken right through from the Landing to Slave lake, and down the Mackenzie to the Arctic ocean. Last season over 1,000 men took the route by way of Great Slave lake to the Yukon.

From Athabasca Landing to Grand rapids, 165 miles, is one unbroken stretch of navigation, with only one rapid, the Pelican, to be passed. This rapid is insignificant, and 120 miles from the Landing.

Grand rapids portage, half a mile, follows. The load has to be carried over the portage, but the empty boat can be let down by hand. This is a difficult and dangerous place, however, and guides should be secured here to take the boats through this and succeeding rapids extending from Grand rapids to Fort McMurray, 87 miles. There are ten rapids in the 87 miles, but all are run with full loads except the Cascade, where a portage of all or part of the load for a few yards has to be made.

From McMurray there is a stretch of about 300 miles of unbroken down stream navigation made up as follows: Athabasca river, 170 miles. Across neck of Athabasca lake, 10 miles. Outlet of lake to junction with Peace River, 30 miles. Peace River to Fort Smith down Great Slave river, 75 miles.

The H. B. Co. have a large steamer plying on this stretch of navigation, and the Roman Catholic mission also have a steamer. A Chicago company also have a steamer which was put on last fall.

There are a succession of four portages within 16 miles at Fort Smith. The portages are short, being only from a quarter to half a mile, and at the last one only part of the load has to be portaged. At the other three the boat and load have to be portaged. There is a cart road sixteen miles in length around the rapids, and freight is hauled by team around the rapids at 50c to $1.00 per 100. Many people, however, prefer to do their own work on the portages to hiring teams. A guide has to be hired to take the boats past the rapids and over these portages.

From Fort Smith to Great Slave lake is 195 miles of uninterrupted down stream navigation. The H. B. Co. and the Roman Catholic mission have steamers on this stretch of river. A number of small steamers were put on last season by Yukon bound parties.

The time occupied on the trip from Edmonton to Great Slave lake varies according to the stage of water, the loads taken, the kind of boat, and the numbers and energy of the men themselves. In a good stage of water the time would vary from 15 days light to 30 days loaded. Being down stream there is not so much difference between light and loaded time as if it were up-stream or on still water. The delay with loads is at the portages.

A start may be made from the Landing early in May. But if heavy loads are to be taken, late in May is the best time to start, as that is the beginning of the season of high water.

The best kind of boat to take is of course one that is suitable for lake as well as river navigation. The build known as the York or inland boat of the Hudson's Bay Company is no doubt the best. These boats can be built Athabasca Landing; or at Edmonton and be freighted to the Landing. The best size is one that would carry 44 to 50 tons, and is handled by a crew of nine men. Where the boat has to be portaged, as at Fort Smith rapids, two boat crews should be together. For going down the river a smaller and cheaper boat would answer equally well, but for use on the lake the larger and better built the boat is the better for those who have to use it.

A canoe trip to Great Slave lake can be made quite easily and would be very enjoyable. Return passage could be secured on the H. B. steamers to McMurray, but from there to Grand rapids boats have to be tracked up stream by hand. It is expected that a steamer will be in operation during the coming season on the Athabasca between Grand rapids and the Landing.

The committee on fair grounds and park reported they had secured over $8,000 subscriptions towards a company to purchase and improve fair grounds, and that they would recommend the acceptance of the offer made by the H. B. Co. of 55 acres of land on the lower H. B. Co. flat. There was every prospect that the remainder of $10,000 required to ensure the incorporation of the company would be forthcoming.

The immigration committee was instructed to press upon the town council the desirability of providing accommodation for immigrants in town during at least three months in the coming spring, by renting a building. And failing action by the council to circulate a subscription list to secure the necessary funds to provide such a building.

The committee appointed at a former meeting to memorialize the government regarding the desirability of the early completion of the bridge was further instructed to proceed with their memorial.

SOCIAL AT HORSE HILL.

A social was held at Horse Hill school house on Wednesday evening, Feb. 1st. This is the first social that has been held for three winters, but from all appearances on that evening, it was plain that the ability to provide a good supper and have a good social time was not absent. It seemed as though all were bent on making up for lost time. Although the thermometer was very low, the families of the neighborhood all turned out, and numbered about sixty-five. Mr. and Mrs. Forbes and Mr. Beaver, of Fort Saskatchewan, were present. Mr. Beaver's performance on the violin were highly appreciated. Rev. H. Galway and Mr. Groat were present from the Sturgeon and helped to enliven the audience with guitar and mouth organ music. Amongst the numbers on the program were: Chairman's address, Mr. Forbes; instrumental, Messrs. Beaver, Galway, and Groat; reading from "Christmas Carol," Mr. Fletcher; instrumental, Miss Duguid; solo, "Massa ob de sheep fold," Mr. Galway; dialogue, Mr. Dorland, and Willie Clark; violin solo, Mr. Beaver; reading, Miss Todd; solo, "Annie Laurie," Mr. Apin; trio, "Watch on the Rhine," Messrs. Forbes, Galway, and Apin; dialogue, "Train to-morrow," Miss Duguid, Mr. Dorland, and James Collins; solo, "Laughing song," Mr. Groat; reading, Mr. Dorland; instrumental, Mr. Groat; recitation, "His mother's song," Mr. Apin; solo, "Mary of Argyle," Mr. Forbes; duet, "Updies," Messrs. Apin, and Galway.

A collection was taken up in aid of the Sunday school. After the program supper was again served, after which "God Save the Queen" was sung. A vote of thanks was passed for the visitors who had so ably helped with the program, especially to Mr. Apin who had spent a great deal of time to get arrangements made. It is hoped that another such pleasant evening will be spent together before many more months pass away.

EDMONTON GENERAL HOSPITAL.

Communicated.

Why have the doctors resigned?

The following is the plain answer to this enquiry: The doctors have resigned their alternate monthly attendance of pauper patients, because they were not satisfied with the answers received from the Rev. Mother General of the sisters of charity, to the following resolutions passed by them in last December:

1. That no charity patients are to be admitted without an order from the doctor for the month, or an order from a member of the medical board.

2. That no private patients be admitted to the hospital without the order of a doctor who shall be in charge of the patient, or if any private (paying) patient desires admission such patient shall have the doctor of the month.

3. That in the event of an emergency case, (accident, etc.) a patient may be admitted without a doctor's order, but that such case must be clearly one of great urgency, and in such cases the doctor for the month shall be immediately sent for, and he shall have charge of such case, or in the event of the doctor of the month not being available, the assistant shall be sent for, and in his absence any other member of the board.

4. That no pauper maternity cases be admitted.

5. That a book be procured to be kept in the doctors' room, in which the doctor admitting a patient shall enter his or her name and certify as to the standing of each patient, etc., if private, pauper, (paying or not paying) diagnosis, date of admission, discharge, etc.

6. That the rules and regulations in regard to the admission, etc., of patients and general management of the hospital be printed.

To these resolutions the Rev. Mother Filiault, superior general, sent the following answers to the Rev. Sisters in charge of the hospital:

To No. 1. I answer that having been appointed by the community superior of the hospital, you have the right to admit or not pauper patients, if you have good reasons to do so. In a large country as yours, how can you expect a poor patient already tired out by a long trip to go round the town to get a doctor's note? I noticed the fact while you last summer.

To No. 2. You have the same right for admission or not of private patients, and such patients are at liberty to have a doctor of their own choice, you cannot interfere in the matter. Any regular qualified medical practitioner may have patients in our hospital.

To No. 3. In an emergency case, it is well to notify the doctor on duty. In his absence get the nearest doctor you can.

To No. 4. The question for maternity cases not being finally settled, nothing is to be said on the subject. You will consequently act according to my private instructions, as you have already done.

To No. 5. During my inspection in June, I found your records concerning the patients kept in the manner used in our hospitals, and in very good order. I consider that this work should remain in your hands.

To No. 6. I saw at the entrance of the hospital, in the different wards and private rooms, proper regulations in printed form, giving clear information to every one concerned.

Finally beg of Rev. Father Leduc as your superior, to see the doctors and have an understanding with these gentlemen, which might prove more satisfactory to all parties concerned.

Yours sincerely,

SISTER FILIAULT.
Sup-General.

THE RAILF ELECTION.

Calgary Herald, Feb. 3rd: Mr. Justice Rouleau sat at the police baracks at Canmore yesterday for the purpose of hearing appeals from the courts of revision. Twelve appeals were entered by Dr. Brett and five by Mr. Sifton. Evidence was taken in 12 cases, the others being adjourned to February 16th at Calgary. The argument as to the validity of the appealed votes will take place on Monday next.

C. C. McCaul, Q. C., appeared on behalf of Dr. Brett, and F. J. Nolan on behalf of Mr. Sifton.

BEAVER LAKE EAST.

Alfred Whitford has blossomed out as a trader. He is doing well at it too. His business is carried on chiefly with a band of Saulteaux out in the Birch Lake district.

John D. McAllister added a grain crushing business to his other enterprises not long since. His terms are very reasonable, and many have patronized him. His store is succeeding well also.

At the annual meeting of the ratepayers of the Beaver Lake school district, Malcolm McCallum was re-elected trustee by acclamation. This is the third time he has been re-elected without opposition.

J. E. Hogg, Presbyterian missionary, holds regular services in the Northern and Tofield districts at the south of the lake, and in the Ross Creek district on the west side.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson, C. of E. missionary, is now at Banff.

LONDON FUR SALES.

The London fur sales which took place from Jan. 16th to 20th show muskrat lower than in January last, and mink a badger lower than in March last. All other furs are higher. The circular of a leading New York fur house remarks:

There has been a general advance on all articles, more especially on mink and gray fox. Of these articles mink is in most demand. On muskrat the demand is only fair and the greater quantity will have to be bought for export purposes. While mink advanced 33 per cent, buyers have been paying that advance for the last month, and therefore there cannot be any such advance on late prices. Skunk, at the present prices, are very high, and it is hardly to be expected that there will be any further advance on this article. Mink will have to be bought according to color, and good dark skins will realize good prices.

The following is a list of the changes in prices at the sales:

Beaver,	12 1/2 c h than last Jan.
Muskrat, spring,	15 " " " "
Muskrat, winter,	7 1/2 " " " "
Muskrat, fall,	Same as last January.
Otter,	15 c h than last Mar.

THE BRADFORD MINING CO.

T. P. Robb, manager, and E. P. Spaulding, assayer for the Bradford Mining Co., left on Tuesday for Finlay river with a complete drilling, blasting, and assaying outfit to develop quartz claims located by Mr. Robb and his associates last summer. The party of prospectors passed through Edmonton nearly a year ago and were known as the Dr. Potts party. Dr. Potts, an ex-Canadian, of Chicago, being the leader, and Mr. Robb, who is in charge of the present party, being mining expert. Mr. Robb has had a good deal of experience in prospecting and mining, having done important exploratory and prospecting work in Alaska, Siberia and elsewhere. His professional standing is high and his principals are both able and willing to put his judgment to the test. Dr. Potts, Mr. Robb and other members of the party returned to "Edmonton" in November last. They did not say much as to what they had or had not done, but, however, expressed their intention of returning in February, to go up and develop their find. Just where it is or what it is they have not divulged, but it is supposed to be free milling gold quartz, and it is located somewhere on the west slope of the Rockies near the waters of the Peace. The party of miners whom Messrs. Robb and Spaulding are taking out to work on their claims this summer are: John Gibb, Wm. Gibb, J. W. Coffey, Miss Lee, George Lee, James Anderson. They are taking about 7 tons of mining material and supplies. Chas. Anderson takes three teams, William Harkness takes 7 teams, and a team still remains in town to take a quantity of gasoline, which had not arrived when the main party pulled out. The gasoline is for use in assaying. Their supplies are furnished by McDougall & Secord, who are also contractors for the delivery of the freight at the mouth of the Finlay river. It is expected that the freight will be landed there in about 40 days. The route taken is to Athabasca Landing, 96 miles by trail. Then up the Athabasca to the mouth of Lesser Slave river, about 75 miles. Up Lesser Slave river to Lesser Slave lake, 60 miles. Along Lesser Slave lake, 65 miles. Up Peace River crossing 75 miles. Up Peace River past Dunvegan and St. John's to Hudson's Hope, 290 miles. Across the Rocky Mountain Portage, 12 miles, and again up Peace River through the Rocky Mountains themselves to the junction of the Finlay and Parang, 70 miles. Total 653 miles. If the summer trail were completed this distance would be shortened by about 100 miles. At present the rivers are followed most of the way to ensure a clear road. There is no doubt that the road will be well broken to Peace River Crossing, and very likely all the way to the mouth of the Finlay. This route offers every facility for taking in machinery and supplies, as double teams are used all the way.
